Taxi driver robbed, shot

Three minors are among four suspects arrested

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Police believe they have arrested all four suspects in the Thanksgiving Day shooting of a taxi driver who delivered four fares to a Sixth St. address.

In custody are Gilbert McPherson, 19, along with a 14-year old male and two 17-year old males. All of the suspects, who are unrelated to each other and live in West Sacramento, have been charged with attempted murder and robbery.

The incident occurred about 11:15 p.m. on Thursday, when the driver picked up the four suspects in Sacramento.

"They had asked for a ride to 6th St. near 13th St.," said Lt. David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Dept. "After arriving at that dead-end area on 6th St., one of the suspects asked if he had change for a $20 bill. The price of the ride was around $6. When the driver pulled out the money from his pocket, one suspect pulled out a gun and said he wanted all the money. The victim was then struck by another suspect.

"At this point, the victim accelerated the car (with the four suspects still in it) and the suspect who had the weapon fired it, hitting the victim in the back. The taxi driver then stopped the vehicle. The suspects fled and the victim called police."

The next day, McPherson was arrested at a store and the 14-year old was arrested at his home. The two 17-year olds were apprehended at their homes over the weekend. All the arrests were without incident.

School bond campaigners nominate oversight team

District celebrates victory in Measure R

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

At a special reception Monday to honor campaign volunteers for Measure R, campaign co-chairman Mike McGowan read the WUSD school board a list of seven names being recommended by the campaign committee to serve on an oversight committee as "watchdog" over the school bond's funds.

Measure R passed last month, authorizing over $17 million in local taxes and hoping to attract another $20 in state funds to help repair and upgrade local schools.

Nominated for the oversight committee -- which will be officially staffed by a future school board action -- are:

Liz Amaral, a district parent and employee of the state's contracts department; Mike Bowman, a CPA who served as treasurer of the campaign; Bob Eldridge, a PG&E career employee and former city planning commissioner; Linda Peterson, an active district parent; Kevin Johnson, a development manager; June Paige, a chief volunteer for the campaign and also for the police department's V.I.P. program; and Tony Vendetti, a college student and former student school board member.

"The role of the oversight committee will be shaped by the committee itself," commented McGowan (a county supervisor) yesterday. "They are not an advisory body and they're not a legislative body. They're a watchdog. This was our effort to establish an independent, hard working group of people to oversee the spending of the bond funds and ensure the school district spends the money in the manner that was pledged during the campaign."

The committee was authorized by the ballot measure, although its structure and manner of operation remain an open question. School board members have indicated they will give great weight to the nominations forwarded by the campaign committee.

Fire evicts residents of duplex

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Two households were given shelter by the American Red Cross after a fire swept through half of a duplex at Evergreen Ave. and Pecan St. last week.

The fire occurred about 11 a.m. on Nov. 23.

"Ultimately, it went to two alarms and we had about six engines show up," said Fire Marshal Mike Foley. "There were minor injuries to both tenants in one unit. An adult male had minor burns on his arms and hair, and a child was treated for smoke inhalation. The man and child were burned out of their unit."

A family in the other half of the duplex also had to evacuate due to smoke damage.

"Our initial investigation indicates it started somewhere in the couch area," added Foley. "We suspect, possibly, a carelessly discarded cigarette."

Later the same day, a "deliberately set" fire started in a laundry room at Sandalwood Apartments on Evergreen Circle.

The evening fire "completely destroyed" the laundry room, reported Foley. "We went to a second alarm right away when we saw the amount of smoke."

No dwellings were affected and no injuries were reported.

"That fire was intentionally set," he added.

No arrests have been announced.

PEARL HABOR DAY REFLECTIONS

By Jeanette Keith

Editor's note: Jeanette Keith is a local freelance writer whose work has previously appeared in the News-Ledger. With Pearl Harbor Day coming December 7th, the following remembrance seemed particularly appropriate.

A military cemetery has row after row of white markers, standing at attention, to honor servicemen and women who have been laid to rest. In Pearl Harbor, there is just one marker for 1,102 servicemen. This marker is the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial.

In 1962, twenty-one years after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the memorial, a white concrete bridge, was built spanning the hulk of the battleship Arizona. Sunk in shallow water, salvage of the ship was not possible and removal of the bodies below her decks was thought to be too dangerous. Naval welders were sent under water to seal all access to the ship's hold, entombing forever her dead.

On Veterans Day, 1982, I visited the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial. It was an experience I will never forget.

Before boarding the naval transports which take visitors to the memorial, the visitors' center shows a film depicting the events of December 7, 1941. The crew of the Arizona had been granted the privilege of sleeping late for having taken first place in a band competition the previous day. As the Japanese planes flew in with the rising sun, many of the crew still lay sleeping in their bunks in the lower decks. The film ends with underwater footage of the Arizona. As the camera moves along the length of the sunken ship, the names of those lost are whispered.

The memorial is completely white, open to the sea air through fourteen large windows and it supports a three-sided room at each end. After disembarking from the naval transport, I entered the larger of these two rooms upon whose walls are etched the names of the servicemen entombed below. There were no ropes or barriers to keep me from touching these names and I found myself compelled to do so as I scanned the walls.

Leaving the room of names, I entered the massive center of the memorial. The fresh sea breeze felt good as it blew across my face and through my hair. Looking through open windows, the sunken battleship was visible in the shallow water below. Though tightly sealed, oil, her life blood, still seeps from her hold. After more than fifty years, with rust corroding her once gleaming body, it seems as if the Arizona has not yet accepted her death and weeps for her crew.

In the center of the memorial is a viewing area. A six-by-six foot opening in the floor, surrounded by a short wall, provides visitors a place where they can drop flowers on the ship below. There, beneath a light film of oil, colorful fish were swimming above the sunken ship. Seemingly out of place, there was beautiful life.

At the far end of the memorial, a smaller room seems to be without decoration. Facing away from the memorial is an opening the size of a large picture window. This room needs no man-made adornments. Nature has provided a spectacular view of the land not far away. The trees, flowers, birds and sky paint a natural mural of life.

Standing there, I realized the memorial is in direct contrast to the ship for which it was built. The Arizona lays underwater, her hatches, portholes and doors forever closed. On the memorial, though, the windows are without panes and the ceiling is open to the clear sky above.

The white cement bridge floating above a sunken battleship is not the memorial. The real memorial is the ship and its crew entombed within her, the harbor water and the life it supports, the brilliant blue sky, the sea breeze and the structure on which I was standing. These elements all come perfectly together to memorialize the sons, brothers and fathers lost on that fateful day.

Looking back from the transport which returned me to land, the structure no longer appeared to be a white floating bridge. In its place, I saw a beautiful white ship. A ship that proudly displays her country's flag and forever whispers the names of her crew into the breeze as it blows across the harbor.

Second time is a charm?

Two school board members are miffed that a request to had two management positions to one of the school district's department will be back on the agenda tomorrow, one week after a similar measure failed on a 2-2 vote.

Board president Pat Flint, who said it was her understanding that the board president "absolutely" controls the school board's agenda, said it had been placed on this week's agenda both without her consent and without any communication from the superintendent.

Flint said Superintendent Dr. Dennis Kelleher has effectively taken over the power of setting the school board's agenda.

"He has turned me down flat for the last three items I have asked to be put on the agenda," she said.

Last week, the issue of adding the two management positions came to the board with a quorum of four members present. Board member Dave Farmer asked to pull the item

Local school administrators meet & plan in Tahoe

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Costs for a three-day management retreat which took local school officials to Lake Tahoe in August were apparently a bit higher than previously estimated to the News-Ledger.

Twenty-one principals, vice principals, and top district management (not including the school board) attended the workshop centered at the Granlibakken Conference Center in Tahoe City. According to information supplied by the district, costs were about $7,100 for lodging, meals and other expenditures. Additional costs for mileage reimbursed to the participants was not immediately available from the district, but would raise the final cost.

The cost breakdown included $6,244 paid to the conference center for double-occupancy rooms and meals, $187 for golf-style hats, and $704 for special binders.

The agenda for the retreat focused on improving the schools, reported Renee Regacho, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction for Washington Unified School District.

The first evening concerned itself with "organizational culture -- procedures, effective management strategies and that type of thing," she said.

The following day, "the overall topic was increasing student achievement. We looked at analyzing our own test scores, analyzing data and socio-economic background, ethnicity, and comparing districts and sites. We did some work on 'what do we know about achievement schools,' which are schools that beat the odds."

On the final day, she reports, the conference touched on issues related to the school bond measure, which later passed at the ballot box. But the discussion was not a "campaign" discussion, she added.

"The focus was not on how we were to pass this, but on the plans that were in place at each school site for improvements."

History society, Elks join

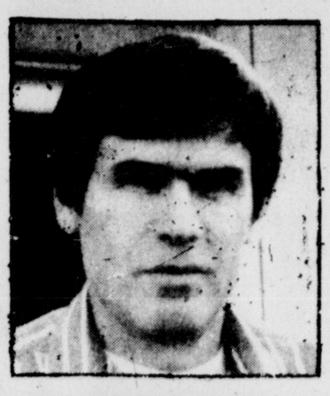

Among the proposals received by the city for the use of the old, 1940s era firehouse building in Broderick is a joint proposal from the West Sacramento Elks Lodge and West Sacramento Historical Society.

The two organizations propose to lease the building, using the rent money for maintenance and improvements. The historical society would occupy the first floor of the building, with the Elks on the second. The Elks have offered to make their portion of the building available at no charge for use by charitable groups, and to the public for $125.

This and other proposals will be examined by city officials, who are attempting to preserve the Art Deco-style building for future use.

Has the real meaning of Thanksgiving been misplaced?

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

When I finally crawled out of bed on Thanksgiving Day last Thursday, the first thing I went in search of was my morning copy of the Sacramento Bee, which, for a change, was actually resting on my front porch. As I reached down, it suddenly dawned on me that the darn thing was even bigger than the typical Sunday paper, which can of course give a person a hernia if he or she isn't careful when they pick it up.

Once back inside the house with my ten pounds or so of newsprint, I plopped down in my favorite rocking chair and began to thumb through it. Among other things, the front page said that the economy was still cooking along at a robust growth rate of over five percent; the Metro section had a story on pop singer Ricky Martin's apparently captivating performance at Arco Arena; the Business section explained in great depth that the state supreme court will soon decide if less-fortified milk will be allowed to start flowing into California from other states; and the Sports section of course went on and on about the new winning ways of the Sacramento Kings.

"Isn't there anything in this gigantic paper about Thanksgiving?" I finally asked my wife, who was seated on the sofa next to me.

Sure enough, at least good old out of touch Dear Abby had taken a few minutes out of her day to try and put Thanksgiving Day into perspective. More specifically, she wrote: "Today is Thanksgiving Day, so take a few minutes to reflect upon all the things for which you are thankful. How's your health? Not so good? Well, thank God you've lived this long. A lot of people haven't." Then she went on to say, "How's your pocketbook? Thin? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight."

Still not quite understanding why a Thanksgiving Day newspaper that said so little about Thanksgiving could be so big, I asked my wife to explain it to me.

"It's all the ads, Daryl," she said matter-of-factly. "Tomorrow is one of the biggest shopping days of the entire year. It kicks off the start of the Christmas season and there are sales everywhere."

Sure enough, once I turned my attention to them, there were indeed ads everywhere!

"Just listen to some of this stuff," I said to my wife. "If you want to buy a new bed mattress from Sealy, they'll give you the boxspring absolutely free; JC Penney is selling NASCAR Barbie dolls for only $14.99 each; 2 slice toasters and 3 speed hand mixers are just $5.99 each at Longs Drugs; Lumberjack is taking $30 off all the gas logs they have in stock; the Good Guys have a storewide policy of `no down payment and no finance charge' until January of 2001; at KB Toy Works you can get the `Early Bird Bonus, which is a free Bedtime Bubba, with any purchase of $200 or more; at Circuit City, for five hours only (last Friday from 7am to noon), you can get a Yamaha 49-key full-size portable electronic keyboard for only $77.99; at Wards, from 6am-11pm on Friday and from 8am-10pm on Saturday you can qualify for the `Early Bird Specials', which include such items as a fiber optic Christmas tree for $17.99 and a Furby Baby for only $19.99; Sears is taking 50 percent off of just about everything, including their entire stock of candles and just about all their robes, warm sleepwear, jackets and sweaters; Big K is especially generous, offering a free 16 once box of Ritz crackers for every one you buy (the same deal went for Hefty bags and Superior Mixed Nuts, too); Radioshack is taking 40% off its Rugrats Talking Clock and its 4-in-1 Lighted Remote with Cool Light Show; HomeBase has artificial Christmas trees for $17.99 and Dogloo Pet Shelters for only $69.99; if you are one of the first 700 `guests' to arrive at Mervyns, you get a free holiday collectible figurine by inspired artist Debbie Mumm; and if are one of the first 1,000 shoppers at Target, you get a Pokemon door hanger with a chance to instantly win one of 30 exclusive Pokemon backpacks. By the way, what in the world is a pokemon?"

"You don't want to know," my wife assured me.

"Is it just me," I said, "or does the real meaning of Thanksgiving seem to be getting lost in all this crass commercialism?"

"Did you say that Sears was taking 50 percent off of just about everything in their stores?"

The Sacramento Kings' (9-2) eight game winning streak came to crashing skid in Miami as Pat Riley's team turned up the Heat on the Kings. The Heat beat the Kings 98-88. The Kings will continue their East Coast road trip that will take them to Orlando, Atlanta, Washington, and New Jersey. The only game televised will be the show down in D.C. with Mitch Richmond on Saturday (4 p.m.-ch.31). The Kings will return to the Arco on Wednesday, December 8 (5 p.m.) to play Shaq and the Los Angeles Lakers.

After watching the 49ers lose to the Packers 20-3 on Monday night I finally figured out what is really wrong with the Niners! Everything! The 49ers (3-8) lost their seventh game in row and again failed to score a touchdown. The 49ers exhibited no pass rush, no secondary, no special teams and the quarterback was a no show. The news gets worst if that's possible. The 49ers also lost two starting defensive backs with season ending injuries. Can they lose their eighth game in row? Only time will tell as the 49ers travel to Cincinnati (2-10) to face the team with the worst record in the NFL. The loser of this game will end up with the first pick in next year's draft. Do you think the 49ers will be looking to draft a young QB? The Bengals beat the Steelers last week but the odds makers still have this game as a pick-em.

The Raiders (5-6) had a 14-point lead over Kansas City, but lost another last second 37-34 heartbreaker. Place kicker Michael Husted missed a 44 yard field goal giving the Chiefs great field position at their own 34 with 2:56 and all their time outs. The Chiefs moved the ball down field, and with Pete Stoyanovich's 44-yard field goal the Raiders playoff hopes took another bad turn. Looks like there won't be any Bay Area teams playing in the playoffs this season. Next up for the Raiders are the division leading Seattle Seahawks (8-3) on Sunday in Oakland (1:15 p.m.). In this must win game, a no sell-out means, and another blackout on T.V.

My weekly NFL picks crept above the .500 mark (13 wins, 12 losses, 1 tie) with the Bills win and the Packers cakewalk over the 49ers but I lost the Raiders game in OT. In week 13 take the Packers (-3) to win in Chicago and the Arizona Cardinals (-7) will enjoy the return of Jake the Snake in their win over the Eagles. The Monday night game should be a great battle in Tampa Bay (7-4), who will host the Vikings (7-4). The winner takes over the Central Division lead. I like the Bucs (+3 ½) and their tough defense to upset Minnesota.

The Sacramento Knights will host the Utah Freeze (12-10) in the first round of the World Indoor Soccer League on Friday, December 3 at 7 p.m. The winner will play the Dallas Sidekicks, who beat Monterrey La Raza 4-3 in a overtime shootout game last Friday. The Knights player/coach Iain Fraser was named WISL Coach of the Year and also the leagues Defense Player of the Year. Fraser led the Knights defense to12 consecutive wins and a 17-5 record. If the Knights beat Utah on Friday they will host Dallas in the Championship game at the Arco on Dec. 12. Tickets are available at Arco Arena Box Office.

Sacramento's Diego Corrales (29-0, 24 KO's) will earn over $100,000 while defending his IBF junior-lightweight belt against John Brown (20-6, 10 KO's) on Saturday, December 4 at the Chinook Indian Casino in Oregon. This fight for Corrales, who took the title from Roberto Garcia in October, will be a tough test. Brown, who stands at 5-foot-3, has fought and lost to some tough opponents in Gabriel Ruelas, Angel Manfredy and champion Sugar Shane Mosley. This HBO show has a great fight card that will feature undefeated IBF junior-middleweight Champion Fernando Vargas against Ronald Wright and also Sacramento lightweight Juan Lazcano in a separate 10 rounder.

Major League baseball and commissioner Bud Selig did an about face on the Pete Rose reinstatement issue. Rose, who was banished for life from baseball ten years ago, will get his chance to make a case for his reinstatement in January. I bet you Pete wins his case!

See ya next week!!

because of the absence of colleague Ed Hocking -- a move opposed by Irene Eklund.

The school board then voted on the issue, which failed on a 2-2 vote.

Yesterday, said Flint, she learned from her own sources that it was back with modifications to one of the positions.

"I was not aware of it until this afternoon," she commented. "I had asked that it not be brought back until we had a total district plan brought back for new positions, whether it be a new teacher or a maintenance person. I think it's poor practice to add positions in the middle of the budget year."

Board member Eklund said she, too, felt that the district should consider all of its new positions at once.

"We agreed that all new positions would be brought to us in the beginning of the year when we were doing the budget," said Eklund. "That way, every department would have equal opportunity, instead of adding positions piecemeal like we've been doing."

Attempts to reach Dr. Kelleher were not successful before press time.

Also on the agenda for Thursday is the school board's selection of its new president and vice president for the new year. If the board sticks to its tradition of rotating the honor, current vice president Ardeene Westvik is next in line as president of the board.

School board update & nickname by focus group

It has been an open secret that the school board of the Washington Unified School District is in the midst of another 3-2 split, with trustees Ardeene Westvik, Ed Hocking and David Farmer generally supportive of the superintendent and trustees Pat Flint and Irene Eklund generally opposed.

Since the superintendent serves at the pleasure of the board majority, Dr. Kelleher's job is at the moment safe.

Criticism and rowdy board politics were pretty much kept corked up for the past few months, for fear of endangering the school bond measure. But they may well become more open now.

And speaking of Measure R, the school district held a reception on Monday to honor those most instrumental in its passage. It was a good effort and the congratulations were largely deserved.

Back to that team name:

Last week, it was noted here that the "Sacramento" part of the Sacramento River Cats name was unavoidable. Because the team is a regional team and the city of Sacramento dominates the region, this is just the way it has to be. Hosting the stadium won't get West Sacramento into the Triple A club's moniker.

It's time now to look at the other two words in the new minor league team's name. The Sacramento Bee on Sunday gave the choice of "River Cats" a "C+" grade and correctly noted that this name reflects little of the region. Other minor league teams have chosen names intricately linked with their locale or dominant local industry (think "Copper Kings" or even "Solons"). When you hear these names, you get a flavor of where the team comes from.

The problem with "River Cats" (aside from the obvious quesion, which is "what is one?") is that it was chosen by focus group. This is the same system which gives America its national political leadership -- need we say more?

Use of the focus system was designed to pick a winning name and one which would sell hats, shirts and coffee mugs. Instead of having the club choose a name and create a character and identity from the ground up, and then bring the fan base along, the team chose to let a trendy kind of popularity contest lead the way.

What if "River Cats" doesn't sound so cute ten years from now?

But of course, none of these worries will keep us out of the cheap seats come April.

In Major Finding, Drug Curbs H.I.V. Infection in Newborns

By LAWRENCE K. ALTMAN
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 – A federally financed study has found that the drug AZT drastically reduces transmission of H.I.V., the virus that causes AIDS, from infected mothers to their newborns, Government health officials said today.

The findings were considered so significant that the study, which began in April 1991, was ordered stopped on Friday, and officials are spending the holiday weekend notifying the 59 medical centers in the United States and France taking part in the study to offer AZT to the pregnant women who had been receiving a placebo.

In addition, said Dr. Anthony S. Fauci, the head of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the data from the study were being distributed as a "clinic alert" through the National Library of Medicine, which has a computer network available to health care workers around the world.

Dr. Harold W. Jaffe, an epidemiologist and the top scientist on H.I.V. at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta, said in an interview today that the finding was one "of major public health importance."

"It is the first indication that mother-to-child transmission of H.I.V. can be at least decreased, if not prevented," Dr. Jaffe said. "And it will provide a real impetus for identifying more H.I.V.-infected women during pregnancies so that they could consider the benefits of AZT treatment to themselves and their children."

About four million women give birth in the United States each year, and the disease centers estimate that 6,000 to 7,000 of them are H.I.V.-infected. About 1,500 to 2,000 of their babies later become H.I.V.-infected.

Big Problem in Africa

The transmission of the virus to newborns is a much bigger public health problem in developing countries in Africa, Asia and South America, where millions of people are infected and where infection rates among childbearing women can reach 10 percent to 30 percent in some areas, said Dr. James Curran, coordinator of all H.I.V. activities at the disease centers. He added that in some areas of the United States, including some urban areas in the Northeast, the comparable figure is as high as 5 percent.

On average, about 25 percent of pregnant women who are H.I.V.-infected pass along the virus to their babies. The researchers had confidence in the study because the

The Sacramento river registered 4 feet 2 inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. Although this shows an inclination for a steady raise in the stream the figures above quoted were taken at high tide and is not the regular average of the stream for this time of the year. Some rain in the northern counties have raised the river to this extent but not so that it is really noticeable for the present time.

The volunteer firemen are promising a splendid time at their dance on Saturday evening, November 24th. Tickets are being distributed and are being sold by the members of the department, not only to their friends and relatives in Washington but to many people in Sacramento and outside points. Sheriff Monroe has promised the firemen that he will be present at the dance and bring along eight or ten of his boys who love to take part in these country dances.

Constable Buckingham is having an addition made to one of his barns at the rear of his home. His increased stock demanded increased room and the addition measures 31x16 feet. Ira Davis, who had been at work with George Newall on the building, was injured somewhat last Wednesday when one of the heavy cross pieces swung from a rope, struck him in the stomach and prostrated him for a time. Today he was feeling much better and expects to be at work in a few days.

Before Judge Barry last Thursday, Lillian Clark and Lazarus Andrews, a colored citizen, were each sentenced to thirty days in jail on a charge of vagrancy. They had been picked up by Constable Buckingham in the jungles south of the M street bridge, evidently using again the dope that has been the cause of so much trouble to them. Both of them are victims of narcotics and have spent time in the Woodland jail on previous charges. They promised Judge Barry last Thursday they would never again return to Washington if they were given a light sentence in the county jail. Lillian Clark is a derelict and evidently an incurable drug addict that has been a nuisance to the peace officers of this section of the country.

The Washington Star Club at its meeting last Wednesday night in the Westminster Presbyterian church in Sacramento held a mock trial that was rather interesting. Fleming Peek was accused of stealing a bicycle from the curb in front of the Kimball-Upson store. He was defended by Francis Bennetts, while A. Bonnetti was prosecuting attorney, and Fred Gale took the part of judge. Donald Shaw claimed to be a witness to the theft but was not quite sure that it was Peek he had seen taking the bicycle. The jurors in the case were J. De Riso, W. Westergard, J. Ball, Bill Norton and a few other boys of the club. Peek was found not guilty, although the evidence against him was convincing. After the trial a basketball game was played, resulting in the score of 14 to 6 in favor of the Washington Star Club. Next Saturday night the boys will play in the Y. M. C. A. against the basketball team of the Christian church.

Since his return from the mills of the Calder Lumber Co. at Diamond, J. S. Leer has been actively engaged in improving his home on Elizabeth street. A new floor has been placed in the lower story or living portion of the home and the entire interior of the house has been repapered and renovated.

Many old friends of J. Wilson, who died last week at Verona, will remember him as being one of the oldest fishermen on the Sacramento river. During many years he made his living as a fisherman and he was known to treat his fellowmen just as white as any man who ever lived, although he was a Kanaka who never denied his birth. He left five children to mourn him, and his burial took place in East Lawn cemetery.

Ed Moss has just installed a Bender ice machine in his butcher shop in Washington at an expense of about $1,300. The New Era Refrigeration Company are the manufacturers of this machine and claim that it will keep his ice box colder than several tons of ice, although it may not be run more than three hours of any day even in the hottest weather.

The machine is equipped with a two horsepower motor which runs an ammonia pump that supplies refrigeration not only to the cold storage receptacle but to the display counters, which are a part of the shop equipment. The machine is located principally in the basement of the building and is entirely out of sight of the customers of the shop. It has a capacity of one ton of ice every day, but Moss declares it is not his purpose to manufacture ice, using the plant alone to cool off his cold storage and display counters in the butcher shop. John Rankin, a refrigerating engineer of the corporation, has been busy during the past week installing the plant for Moss, and on a trial test yesterday was perfectly satisfied with the way the machine did its work. Moss was highly pleased, too, because he has been anticipating this improvement for a long time.

Charlie Edwards and wife and a cousin, Mr. and Mrs. O. Webster of Sacramento, made quite a trip last Sunday in search of game, but failed to bring any home although an entire day was spent in scouring the country looking for loot. Leaving early in the morning they went to Bridge House, then to Slough House, then to Michigan Bar, to Plymouth, to Latrobe, to French Ravine, where they had lunch, after which they proceeded to Placerville and Camino, where they visited friends. The return was made in the early evening in Edwards' Chevrolet and on the entire route only one jackrabbit and a jay hawk was met up with.

The committee recently appointed at a joint meeting of the parents and teachers of the Washington school for the purpose of canvassing the community to raise funds for the financing of the Christmas tree at the school house on December 23d report much success up to date. Actual money solicited by the canvassers amounts to $62, while more than $20 has been promised in excess of this amount. The sum of $100 was set as the goal in the finance soliciting. The proceeds derived from the campaign will go towards buying fruits, nuts, candies and suitable presents which will be presented to the children in grab bag form. The recipients for the Christman presents number more than 350.

Lowell Russell left Tuesday for Oakland, where he expects to make his home in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Eugene and Mrs. Amy Reed comprise a party of Washington residents who left on Wednesday for Oroville, where they will spend a short while on a combined business and pleasure trip.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cameron and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. White, Jr., returned to their home in Washington following a visit to Stockton Saturday night, during which they attended a dance and ceremonial conducted by the Shriners in that city.

Erlo Pankost has returned to his home in Oakland, following a short visit spent here with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Stumbo, who have been visiting at the home of Fred Moser, returned to their home near Franklin, where they are engaged in ranching activities.

Mrs. Anna Thomas, who has been confined to her home for the past two weeks by illness, has recovered.

Mrs. F. C. Buckingham of Paradise Valley, Nevada, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Josephine Marty, mother of Mrs. Buckingham.

L. E. Sorrels has moved from the Stewart home on Fourth street to the Moffatt place on Second street.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Washington Community church has announced a change in the date of the annual bazaar. It will be held on December 7th instead of the 8th, as was formerly decided upon.

Ray Speicher and Paul Dupzyk have returned from a week-end visit to the Bodega Bay region.

CHINESE CONTINUE TO BE HARRASSED EVEN THOUGH EVIDENCES OF GAMBLING ARE NOT FOUND

In Judge Barry's court last Tuesday Lee Wee was discharged without prejudice and his cash bail of one hundred dollars refunded to him after he had been brought into court by Constable Buckingham on a charge of playing chuck-a-luck.

At the same time $17.05 that had been taken up by Constable Buckingham was returned to the Chinese without prejudice.

The Oriental had been placed under arrest by Constable Buckingham in response to the reform movement that seems to have struck Washington like other places. He deliberately walked into this Chinaman's place of business and finding $17.05 on a table arrested the Chinaman and took the coin. No other evidence of gambling being around, the constable was forced to make affidavit that he simply believed the place to be a gambling joint ready for execution at the request of reformers.

There being no evidence outside of the money against the Chinaman, Judge Barry had no alternative but to discharge the Oriental under the complaint against him.

This was all right until Wednesday, when three ladies of Washington went to Woodland and made affidavit before Judge Harrison that they wanted the Washington Hotel and other Chinese places raided to prove that gambling was going on.

Of this excursion the Mail of Woodland renders a comical account in the following clipping from its columns in its issue of last Wednesday:

Woman's tears softened the determination of Justice of the Peace R. W. Harrison yesterday morning not to issue search warrants to women of Broderick bent upon searching alleged Chinese gambling dens, when the little river town had a perfectly good and competent justice of the peace in Jerome D. Barry. When Mrs. E. Painter, member of a Broderick committee of three women, attended Harrison, wept copious tears, the august court searched for his fountain pen and blanks, and search warrants were issued to the heart's desire of the women. The other two members of the committee were Mrs. Archibald Cameron and Mrs. J. McNeven. All three women were visibly distressed at the scene.

The women were frank in stating to the court that Judge Barry would not issue them warrants.

"I am not compelled to do the work of another justice," said Harrison.

"My work here is too much. What right have I to go out of my jurisdiction?"

That was the opportune time and Mrs. Painter wept. She explained that she would be driven from her home unless there was some action. She alleged that gambling Celestials kept her awake at night; autos going and coming at all hours. Her house is next to the Warring and Hanson properties in Broderick. She was certain that there was gambling going on and pleaded for search warrants.

The court weakened; the women dried their misty eyes. The atmosphere cleared when Harrison turned a search warrant duly executed over to the women with the well known exclamation: "Never again, no matter how much you weep." And so the trio left, happy, jubilant, satisfied. The Broderick houses were to be searched last night.

Speaking to the Independent yesterday, Judge Barry said:

"So long as there are nine sworn deputy sheriffs in the town I am not going to issue warrants to women on mere belief. That is not sufficient to warrant arrests without cause.

"I do not see gambling, I don't visit gambling houses, but I will not take mere suspicion on the part of any person as sufficient evidence for the issuance of a warrant. I don't believe that the laws of the land should be trifled with in this way, and I don't think people are justified in swearing to warrants who have no better evidence than belief or assertion. The warrant itself indicates that there must be some evidence of a stronger character to cause the arrest of any person, even though he be an Oriental or a Chinese.

"Since deputies have been sworn in, I believe they should perform the duties allotted to them and I don't believe in outsiders stepping on the privileges and duties of deputy sheriffs.

"The evidence before me in the case of Lee Wee did not warrant his conviction and I believe other arrests along that line beget disrespect for the laws of the land.

"Persons swearing to affidavits must be careful lest they commit perjury, which would get them into serious trouble."

The warrants issued by Judge Harrison of Woodland last Wednesday were not served until late yesterday afternoon and then no evidence of gambling was found on the Chinese premises.

The large building erected by the Chinese near the M street bridge at a cost of about $15,000 is approaching completion. Whether this will be molested remains to be seen, but it is certain that the Chinese are not going to stand for interference in that quarter because they believe themselves to be so isolated as not to be obnoxious to any residents of the town.

JAPANESE WOMAN ARRESTED SECOND TIME AT ISLETON

Mrs. F. Summi, Japanese, yesterday for the second time was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Ed Oestreicher on a charge of violating the Wright act for possessing contrabrand liquor. She was fined $300 for the first offense and will be taken into court tomorrow for prosecution on the new accusation. Mrs. Summi was arrested at Isleton.

The Lakes of Killarney in Ireland are owned by the Earl of Kenmare, who has preserved his heritage from commercial encroachment.

POSTMASTER BENNETTS IS TRANSFERRED TO THE SACRAMENTO OFFICE

Since last Monday J. N. Bennetts, postmaster in Washington during the last twelve years, was transferred by the postal authorities to the Sacramento office where he will continue to work in the future.

Who will take his place as postmaster of Washington has not yet been determined, but probably it will be taken over by some local resident who will continue the business likely in the location where it is now situated.

J. N. BENNETTS

Bennetts was not prepared to say that he had completed negotiations for the sale of his store and postoffice fixtures when interviewed by the Independent yesterday. He did, however, say that he was negotiating for the sale of the store stock and the fixtures in the postoffice.

No matter who purchases his stock they will have to secure permission and confirmation from the general postoffice authorities from Washington, D. C.

In the meantime Mrs. Bennetts is conducting the store and postoffice during the absence of her husband while at work in Sacramento, and after he puts in his eight hours in the registry department of the red building he continues to work at the Broderick postoffice until closing time.

Bennetts has given his entire attention to the affairs of the postoffice in Broderick during the past twelve years, four years of which it was located in the Hinman store and eight years in the present location.

During his tenure of office the postoffice was raised from fourth to third class, thus guaranteeing to the postmaster a regular salary.

When he took over the postoffice there were 54 lock boxes and now there are 439.

Bennetts gradually increased the business through strict attention and courteous treatment of his patrons. Never did the postal authorities find fault with his work and never was he credited with one black mark in the way of demotion.

He was badly handicapped owing to the fact that his family was growing and he had but four rooms in the rear of the postoffice in which to live.

Last spring he built a very nice home in Colonial Heights which he is now occupying and his transfer to the Sacramento postoffice runs along in the way of promotion for him, so that he may raise his family and advance in the estimation of the postal authorities.

CLARKSBURG PAIR WED.

Woodland, Nov. 10.——Seymour Gaster, 39, and Alice Anderson, 27, both of Clarksburg, were married here this morning by Recorder Schurley Schluer.

ROAD THROUGH WEST SACRAMENTO TO BE FINISHED THS WEEK

With good weather prevailing during the next three days the new road extending from the church in West Sacramento to Riverview will be completed. An average of two hundred and ten feet per day of concrete roadway is being laid and last Sunday the concrete mixer was within a half mile of the junction with the road on Jefferson boulevard.

The contractors were heartily praying that the good weather would continue for a few days so that they might continue the job so that the rains would not soften the roadbeds as it did last winter.

The work done so far on this stretch of over two miles of roadway is a splendid sample of roadwork. Real material mixed in the proper manner is being placed on a base that has been properly graded and well rolled. The concrete is six inches thick at the center of the roadway and seven inches at each side.

Loose rock is first being spread on the road, after which the mixed concrete is placed on top and graded and sloped to the proper dimensions. With the proper proportions of rock sand and cement this roadway should stand any kind of abuse for many years.

Following the laying of the roadway it is being covered with dirt and then is being kept under water or moistened for a period of ten or twelve days. This gives the concrete an apportunity to settle and solidify so that it will not subsequently crack with varying temperatures.

The loose rock being placed under the concrete has its purpose, namely, to permit the adobe soil to contract or expand without injuring the concrete surfacing.

With the completion of this stretch of road and the completion of the road from the church north to the Bryan place, a finished roadway will connect the western end of the M street bridge with the levee road at the southern end of the West Sacramento district.

This is an accomplishment that has been earnestly desired during many years, especially during the winter seasons when farmers south of West Sacramento had experienced the greatest hardships in getting their products

Protect the skin you're in while you're in the air. Several hours in an air conditioned plane can cause your skin to dry and your lips to chap. Having lotion and lip balm handy can help you avoid itching and discomfort.
